TEEN WAS LEFT BRAIN-DAMAGED AFTER SHOOTING

Pair face jail for 'revenge' gun attack on rival

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

TWO men are facing long prison sentences for a revenge shooting in Haringey which left a teenage boy brain-damaged and in a coma.

Denizen Karadag, 20, and 21-year-old Jayson Duir-Kota are due back at the Old Bailey on April 1 after their cases were adjourned last Friday for pre-sentence reports.

Karadag, of Boyton Road, Hornsey, and Duir-Kota, of Newland Road, Crouch End, were convicted on March 17 of the attempted murder of the 18-year-old victim, whom police are not naming.

The teenager was hit in the head by one of six shots fired at him and his brother in Denmark Road, Turnpike Lane, on the afternoon of Tuesday, August 30, last year.

A short time earlier Duir-Kota had been in his car at a petrol station in Hornsey Lane at the same time as the victim, his brother and friends were filling up the car they were in.

One of the friends had a brief conversation with Duir-Kota, who then contacted Karadag, who had had issues with the brothers in the past.

Karadag headed in their direction on his bike, encountering the victim, his brother and their friends in Turnpike Lane, where there was an abusive and aggressive exchange before Karadag was chased on foot and cycled away.

The brothers continued their journey, while Karadag contacted Duir-Kota by phone and the pair met up.

Armed with a gun, they made their way to Denmark Road which they knew was the brothers' destination.

With hoods pulled up to hide their identities, they sprayed bullets in the direction of the victim and his brother, one of which hit the 18-year-old above the right eye, passing through his brain and lodging inside his head.

Karadag and Duir-Kota then sped off on their bikes.

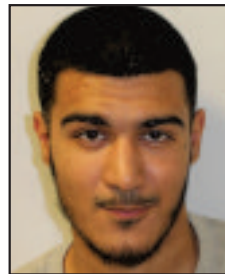

Karadag was identified on CCTV as the man involved in the earlier altercation with the brothers and arrested two days later, with Duir-Kota also identified from CCTV footage and subsequently arrested.

Evidence showed the pair had rung and texted, or tried to ring each other, 30 times in the hours following the shooting.

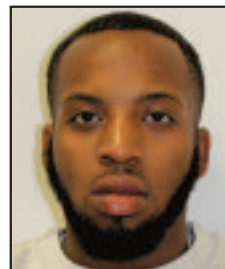

Although it was not apparent which of them pulled the trigger, the jury found both equally culpable due to the clear element of planning involved.

Speaking following their conviction, Detective Inspector Joe Daly, of the Homicide and Major Crime Command, said: "Although the victim's family remain as positive as they can, his injuries are so severe he will never fully recover and will need round-the-clock care for the rest of his life.

"It is an incredibly sad and needless situation and I hope Karadag and Duir-Kota feel the burden of their actions for a long time to come in prison."

Guilty: Denizen Karadag, above, and Jayson Duir-Kota

Council prepares for Syrian families

TWO properties in Haringey have been identified as suitable homes for refugee families fleeing from war in Syria.

The council has informed the Home Office and is making ready the accommodation, following a commitment last November to resettling ten refugee households in the borough.

The two families will be chosen based on their needs and Haringey Council's ability to support them.

Council leader Claire Kober, pictured above, said: "We have been working non-stop to make sure Haringey is ready to welcome the Syrian refugee families. We are proud to be one of the UK's most diverse boroughs and will do all we can to help these refugees fleeing war and violence to settle here and begin rebuilding their lives."

To prepare for the families' arrival, the council has been working with groups including Haringey CAB, Haringey Clinical Commissioning Group, the Bridge Renewal Trust, Muswell Hill Synagogue, Citizens UK, Muswell Hill Methodist Church, St Ann's Church, in Tottenham, Wightman Road Mosque, Embrace UK, Phoenix Community Care and Refugees Welcome Haringey.

The local authority is still looking for landlords willing to rent out property to a Syrian refugee at local housing allowance rates. If you would like to consider doing so, email landlords@haringey.gov.uk or call 020 8489 4527. Volunteers fluent in Arabic are also needed to help the families settle into life in the area.

To get involved, or for more information, call 020 8489 5480 or email equalities@haringey.gov.uk

Cash boost set to ease the plight of rough sleepers

HARINGEY Council has secured a share of £1.7million in government funding to support homeless people and rough sleepers.

Haringey is to receive the money as part of the North London Housing Partnership, which also includes local authorities in Islington, Barnet, Camden, Westminster and Enfield.

The Department for Communities and Local Government homelessness prevention programme aims to develop new approaches to tackling homelessness.

A total of £917,500 has been given towards a prevention programme set up in key locations across England to help households who are considered to be vulnerable to homelessness.

The North London Housing Partnership also secured a grant of £390,000 to bolster an existing programme to provide more emergency accommodation for rough sleepers or people at imminent risk of sleeping on the streets.

Separately, the council has also been awarded a rough sleeping programme grant of £397,875 to support residents who find themselves in crisis and on the streets.

The funding will support projects by charities Thames Reach and St Mungo's.

The Thames Reach programme will encourage voluntary sector and faith-based organisations to coordinate to help rough sleepers in Haringey. St Mungo's will lead a project to work with mental health, drug and alcohol services and North Middlesex University Hospital, in Edmonton, to support rough sleepers.

Tributes are paid to Westminster victims

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

MP David Burrowes has said he is "deeply saddened" by the killing of Pc Keith Palmer and the "lives lost and injured in Westminster Bridge by the callous and cowardice terrorist".

Speaking to the Advertiser, Mr Burrowes told of the moment Khalid Masood forced his way into the Parliament compound and stabbed Pc Palmer before being shot.

Scores of MPs – including Mr Burrowes – were gathered in the Palace of Westminster's cobbled forecourt just moments before a vote on pensions was due to take place last Wednesday.

The MP for Enfield Southgate said: "I heard shots fired and out of the corner of my eye saw police running. They shouted 'get down' and I dived for cover. I was then led away by police into Parliament, to a safe place.

"Only the following day did I appreciate the fear and panic that spread across parliament. Staff in my office on the third floor of Portcullis House had barricaded themselves in and hidden, fearing terrorists were on the loose.

"As we move forward and examine security issues we need to take appropriate action to limit the risk of future attacks. However, we also need to avoid parliament becoming an armed fortress and should retain its accessibility to the public.

"I remain deeply saddened by the loss of life. Pc Palmer was bravely doing his duty and protecting Parliament. Our prayers go out to all the victims and their families."

On Thursday, the Union Jack outside Enfield police station, in Baker Street, was flying at half-mast.

Masood killed four people and injured scores more in an 82-second rampage.

Two Enfield councillors – Yasemin Brett, cabinet member for community, arts and culture, and Krystle Fonyonga, cabinet member of community safety and public health – felt so moved by the horror they penned a joint letter to the people of Enfield, making clear that Londoners are standing firm together against threats to society.

Half-mast: The Union Jack at Enfield police station

"We live in the greatest city on earth and we will not be cowed," they wrote. "We will instead redouble our efforts to root out extremism and continue to celebrate and protect the way of life we cherish so dearly.

"There is no doubt in our mind that if it had not been for the bravery of Pc Palmer, who sadly died in the line of duty, and many other police officers, medical personnel and passers-by who stopped to help that the death toll would have been far worse."

Doug Taylor, the leader of the council, said: "Our thoughts and prayers are with everyone affected by the terrorist attack in Westminster. Hatred has no place in a civilised society and we stand in solidarity."

Inquests into the deaths of the four victims are due to be opened today (Wednesday).

Restaurant closed for three months

GUN incidents and gang tensions have led to the closure of a Turkish restaurant for three months.

Enfield Police say that assaults and complaints sparked action and they obtained a court order against the Kanatci restaurant, in Enfield Highway, under anti-social behaviour laws.

In a Facebook posting, police said: "Due to the recent levels of crime and risk of harm to the public, Kanatci Restaurant, 500-504 Hertford Road, has been closed and will remain closed for three months in order to safeguard the public.

"Enfield Police licensing team have conducted a number of inspections since December 2016 and on each occasion the venue was found to be breaching licence conditions.

"Complaints have been received by members of the public that the premises were operating outside of working hours and there have been a number of calls to police to assist with firearms incidents, assaults and gang tensions.

"Pc Staff and Pc Fisher, from the Enfield licensing team, attended Highbury Corner magistrates' court and obtained a closure order issued under Section 80 of the Anti-Social Behaviour, Crime and Policing Act 2014."

The restaurant will be closed until June.

Students attacked

PUPILS were attacked outside a school's gates last week.

Police are investigating the incident outside Chace community school, in Churchbury Lane, Enfield, on Wednesday afternoon.

A group of youths with no connection to the school arrived in cars, or minicabs, according to a letter sent to parents by the headteacher "before attacking a number of students, in some cases using broken glass as a weapon".

It is believed that a number of arrests have been made.

Church bid to rebuild lych gate

MEMBERS of the parish council of St John's Church, in Clay Hill, North Enfield, are appealing for help in preserving one of the area's prettiest wedding locations.

The lych gate – a porch at the entrance to the churchyard and traditionally where coffins are rested while waiting for a funeral to take place – is suffering from serious subsidence and needs rebuilding.

The existing church building is thought to date from Victorian times and the original horse trough is still in place near the gate.

St John's is a Venetian-style church in a rural setting and is dedicated to St John the Baptist. Its sister church is St Luke's, a red-brick building in nearby Browning Road.

St John's is open between 2pm and 4pm on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, excluding school and bank holidays.

Rev Peter Godden has been appointed the new priest in charge of the parish.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the preservation appeal should contact Monica Wood, c/o The Vicarage, 92 Browning Road, Enfield. Cheques should be made payable to "PCC of St John & St Luke". Gift Aid contributions are welcome.

Michael's match of the day

Soccer star officially opens new pitch at his old school

By Fiona O'Cleirigh

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

FORMER professional footballer Michael Duberry was welcomed back to his old school to open a new pitch.

The former Chelsea and Leeds United player kicked off by scoring the penalty which officially opened the 3G pitch at Enfield Grammar School. He also held a coaching session for 45 Year 7 boys, as well as speaking to a lower school assembly and taking a question and answer session.

Duberry was a pupil at the school, in Enfield Town, between 1987 and 1992. The speeches were followed by a match between the school's 1st XI and a team of "old boys", with the school team winning 2-1.

"This is a great day for my old school because they, and the local community, now have access to top-quality facilities," said Michael. "I'm quite jealous we didn't have this back when I was playing here – it would have saved training sessions and matches being cancelled. Well done to everyone who worked so hard to make this happen."

The £1.25million pitch uses innovative technology which supports artificial blades of grass set in rubber on a thin layer of sand.

It was part-funded by a bequest received from Enfield Old Grammarian John Blissett Newman. The school also received grants from the Football Foundation, the London Marathon Trust, the Mayor of London Facilities Fund and the school's trustees.

Headteacher Christopher Lamb said: "It's such an amazing resource that our boys and the community can benefit from. On behalf of Enfield Grammar School I'd like to thank Michael Duberry for officially opening it. I'd also like to thank the Premier League and the FA for their support in making this dream a reality. The pitch will certainly improve sport, particularly football, at grass-root level."

Another old boy, Jake Livermore, had also been invited to join in the grand opening, but was unable to attend – he was playing for England in Germany the night before.

Pitch perfect: Michael Duberry keeps a keen eye on proceedings

Director of sport Mark Alder said that the school had a large crop of talented pupils who aspire to become professional footballers due to the standards reached by inspirational old boys, including Duberry, Livermore (West Bromwich Albion, Hull City and Spurs), Ryan Mason (Hull, Spurs and England), Steve Morison (Millwall and Wales), James Dayton (Cheltenham Town), Danny Foster (Wycombe Wanderers) and Kevin Stewart (Liverpool).

He added: "Boys are given every chance to progress with nearly 120 games of football being played in a season. This year once again the school has been very successful winning four borough cup finals, with a further four county cup finals to be played before Easter."

Youngsters rewarded for community efforts

YOUNG people from across Enfield were rewarded for contributions to the community at the Jack Petchey Foundation's achievement presentations.

Prizes were handed over to 169 winners aged 11 to 25 at Millfield Arts Centre, in Edmonton, on two evenings last week. Each award winner received a framed certificate, a medallion and a cheque for £250.

Fifteen adults were also celebrated with leader awards for their ability to motivate young people. They received a medallion and a framed certificate.

Youth organisations and schools in Enfield have received funding of £1,263,200 from the Jack Petchey Foundation since funding started.

Jenny Tosh, Enfield Council's chief education officer, said: "The young people and leaders I saw and heard about are an inspiration not only to their community, but also to me personally. It has been a wonderful evening for the schools and clubs in Enfield."

The foundation was founded in 1999 to recognise the positive contributions young people make to society.

Since then it has provided support to 2,000 initiatives supporting young people across London and Essex and has reached a milestone investing £100million.

Sir Jack Petchey, 91, said: "I am passionate about our awards scheme, which enables young people to be recognised, valued and rewarded for their achievements and positive contributions to society."

The wool of the people

SPRING has arrived and so have the new-born lambs at Forty Hall Farm.

More than 3,000 visitors snuggled up to the woolly jumpers for the annual lambing weekend on Saturday and Sunday at the farm, in Forty Hill, Enfield.

A total of 60 lambs have been born on the farm this season and lucky visitors witnessed the last two additions on Sunday. "It was a great success," said farm manager Kate McGeevor.

"We can't always guarantee visitors will see them born so it was an added bonus and they were really pleased."

There was also a demonstration of sheep shearing and other rural attractions included a falconry display, spinning wool, blacksmith demonstration, arts and crafts and pottery making. Food on offer included a selection of cheeses and organic produce.

"It was lovely to give visitors the opportunity to see the lambs before they are let out into the fields," added Kate.

Cocaine smuggler gets 18-year term

By Clare Casey
newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A DRUGS kingpin who ran a £31million cocaine smuggling racket while in hiding at a luxury Spanish villa has been jailed for 18 years.

Paul Monk, 56, spent years shipping huge quantities of cocaine and cannabis from Europe into Britain.

When he was snared in 2015 at the villa in Javier, near Benidorm, Monk was instructing workmen as they were laying marble tiles around his swimming pool.

Monk was caught supplying cocaine in Cockfosters a year before the full extent of the overseas operation unfolded.

He oversaw the importation of 997 kilograms of cocaine into the UK having evaded justice for years after fleeing overseas, the Metropolitan Police said.

He was snared by authorities in Spain when they searched a house near Alicante last April, finding piles of cash hidden in pot plants and paperwork outlining his illicit operations.

A fake passport and an imitation gun was also said to have been found during the search.

Police said Monk, of no fixed

Behind bars: Paul Monk

abode, was sentenced at the Old Bailey on Wednesday last week after he pleaded guilty to conspiracy to supply a quantity of class A drugs between January 1, 2014, and April 15, 2015.

He was also given a four-year prison sentence, to be served concurrently, for supplying one kilogram of cocaine in Cockfosters in May 2013. He had pleaded guilty to this charge at Kingston Crown Court in 2015.

Monk had been at large since he slipped abroad in December 2013, despite being required to stay in the UK as a condition of his release on licence after serving half of a nine-year jail sentence for importing cannabis in 2007.

A European Arrest warrant was issued for him in May 2014. After being captured by Spanish police, he was brought back to the UK on May 7, 2015, and charged with supplying a kilogram of cocaine. He was charged over his role in the supply operation in September last year.

Met detectives established that Monk had imported 997 kilograms of cocaine with a value of £31m.

Detective Sergeant David Williams said: "Monk is a career criminal who showed a disregard for the laws of UK after he fled to Spain in 2013 to escape justice. He obtained false identity documents in order to evade authorities while he continued to run an international drug supply network from his home in Spain.

"Monk has been sentenced to a lengthy period in custody and I would like to thank the Guardia Civil for their co-operation in the investigation that secured this conviction. We will continue to work together to ensure all the proceeds of Monks's drug trafficking empire are confiscated."

Legal agreement marks next step in creating Trent Park mansion museum

By Priya Kingsley-Adam

priya.kingsley-adam@nlhnews.co.uk

PLANS for a museum at an historic mansion which served as a World War II secret listening post obtaining vital information from high-ranking Nazi prisoners has been bound by legal agreement.

After three years of negotiations, Trent Park Museum Trust has been given full responsibility to develop the basement and ground floor of the grade II listed building into a museum, outlined in a legal document signed by Berkeley Homes property developers.

Chairman of the trust and Cockfosters ward councillor Jason Charalambous and historian Dr Helen Fry signed the agreement with representatives from Berkeley Homes on Monday last week.

Mr Charalambous, who spearheaded the Save Trent Park petition in 2014, described it as a "historic milestone" which had brought the reality of the museum a step closer.

A learning centre and museum will be created at the mansion on the 50-acre site, off Cockfosters Road, to highlight the significance it had as one of wartime's best-kept secret operations.

The public will have the chance to learn how British intelligence officers used covert listening devices to find out crucial information and tactics from prisoners.

Visitors will also gain insight into the mansion's earlier history when it was owned by wealthy socialites including politician Sir Philip Sassoon.

"I am so very pleased we have reached this critical juncture and feel vindicated that the very hard work over the past two-and-a-half years has been well worth it," said Mr Charalambous.

"While some people may have doubted we would get this far, our dedicated team and countless supporters made it possible and I am very grateful to all those who have stood by us up to now. It is a real victory for our community." The mansion was sold by Middlesex University to a Malaysian company in 2013 and was resold to Berkeley Homes two years later. Berkeley has plans to redevelop the site into flats, houses and affordable homes and work is expected to start this summer.

Landmark agreement: Dan Massie, from Berkeley Homes, Alan Perkin, secretary of the Trent Park Museum Trust, trust chairman Jason Charalambous, Piers Cranford, managing director of Berkeley Homes, and historian Dr Helen Fry, the trust's deputy chairwoman

Although Trent Park Museum Trust has not specified a date when work on the museum will start, it is hoped to be up and running in the next few years.

Mr Charalambous said that the next hurdle would be to raise money to fund the work and for the project to be passed by Enfield Council at next month's planning committee meeting.

"We are optimistic that within a few years we will be able to cut the ribbon for a new institution that will propel Trent Park to national recognition," he added.

Operations plan is put on hold by CCG

A HEALTH pressure group is in the pink after controversial plans to scrap "non-urgent" operations have been put on hold.

The Enfield NHS Clinical Commissioning Group sparked anger with a document that proposed cutting some non-urgent treatments to tackle a £7.7million annual deficit. It listed ailments including gallstones, hernias, knee replacement surgery and hearing loss which would no longer be available for some patients.

But following a campaign by Enfield Over-50s Forum, which slammed the plans as "hollow" and "short-sighted", Enfield Council has told the CCG to provide more solid evidence and the consultation period for the public to comment has been extended by a month, until April 30.

Abdul Abdullahi, chairman of the council's health scrutiny panel, Abdul Abdullahi, said: "We have asked the CCG to provide clearer and more detailed medical evidence to demonstrate that they are able to withdraw these treatments without causing a serious impact on the health and well-being of our community."

PC assault charge

A SERVING officer based at Edmonton police station has been accused of several counts of assault.

Pc Liam O'Carroll, 31, was charged on Thursday last week with two counts of common assault, two counts of assault on police and one count of racially aggravated common assault.

It followed an incident in Romford Road, East Ham, on October 10 last year.

Pc O'Carroll, who was off-duty at the time, has been bailed to attend Thames magistrates' court on Tuesday, April 25.

The Directorate of Professional Standards has been informed.

VIC SMITH BEDS

Is a small double the answer to your problems?

It may be that your teenage son or daughter is growing up fast and needs that little bit more space to stretch out in, but is restricted because of the room size. They certainly seem to be staying at home longer these days.

Perhaps a spare room won't quite accommodate a standard double. Just not enough space to open the wardrobe doors.

Most of our beds are now available as a small double (120 x 190 cm)

Still big enough for a couple (as long as you're on good terms) but nice to stretch out on if you're on your own.

A small double might be just what you're looking for.

Maybe team it with one of our storage options to really maximise the space.

At Vic Smith Beds we have plenty of answers.

All you need to do is ask the question.

Remember, delivery is free and we will even dispose of your old bed at no extra charge.

Hopeful: Emma Gooch and mum Chris

'We hope the truth is getting nearer'

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A MUM who has spent decades campaigning for a full inquiry into the effects of a hormonal pregnancy testing drug has appeared in a documentary on Sky TV.

Dubbed the "forgotten Thalidomide", Primodos was a drug given to women in the 1960s and 1970s to establish pregnancy and many believe it caused damage and deformity in thousands of babies worldwide.

Miscarriages, cerebral palsy, brain damage and children born without limbs were some of the alleged side-effects.

Chris Gooch, 68, of Carnarvon Avenue, Enfield, was given the pills in 1970.

Her daughter Emma, now 45, was born some months later with birth defects affecting the fingers on both hands and her feet and toes.

Ms Gooch has spent years lobbying – along with hundreds of others – to prove that Primodos was responsible.

Finally, following a six-year long Sky News investigation, "shocking" evidence has emerged claiming that the controversial drug is linked to birth defects.

Primodos: The Secret Drug Scandal aired on Sky Atlantic last Tuesday and again on Sky News on Friday.

Ms Gooch said: "I'm hopeful we're getting nearer and nearer to the truth."

"I have no doubt that Primodos is responsible."

"Emma's fingers were affected and her toes, and now she suffers chronic backache. She is in constant pain."

"We've fought so long for this. We have always said we want the truth and we're not going away."

Primodos was a hormone-based medication given to women to detect pregnancy between 1958 and 1961.

It consisted of two pills that contained high levels of synthetic progesterone, which supposedly induced a period to show the woman was not pregnant. Women were advised to take the first pill and, if they didn't menstruate, take the second one the next day.

The components were later found to be 13 times stronger than the morning after pill.

In 1978, Primodos was discontinued after doctors noticed an increase in the number of deformed babies born to mothers who had been on the drug.

Primodos, which was manufactured by the drug company Schering, now Bayer, who continue to deny it caused deformities in children.

Cycle campaigners bid to build bridges

A FLASHMOB of cyclists, children and even a golden labrador congregated in Winchmore Hill to show their support for businesses.

Intent on bridging the gulf between shopkeepers and cyclists, Better Streets for Enfield instigated a shopping spree on Saturday, urging members to spend in the shops, cafes and restaurants in the area.

The 20-strong group also handed out cards to shopkeepers that read: "We value our local businesses and want them to succeed."

The show of support was prompted following complaints from independent businesses along Green Lanes, at Masons Corner and the Church Street junction, about a drop in income during works to install cycle lanes.

Clare Rogers, Better Streets for Enfield spokeswoman, said: "These concerns are totally understandable. Roadworks are always disruptive, but we're optimistic that the high street will be better for everyone as a result."

"Evidence from all over the world shows that cycle lanes have never hurt business, even when parking is reduced, and sometimes they have a very positive effect on incomes."

But Malcolm McGrath, owner of Keymakers, in Green Lanes, remained cynical. He has had the shop for 32 years and said: "Business has been affected. The footfall into the shop has been reduced. It's hard to quantify yet, but this has had a severe effect. It will render Green Lanes unfit for commerce and drive businesses out."

Other businesses the group visited included La Rocca, Atkinson's Pharmacy, Autostore, Riverside Florists and Lords, finishing with lunch in Coffee Break.

Several councillors joined in, including Alan Sitkin, cabinet member for business and regeneration, who said: "Changing consumer behaviour means that the sector is facing very big challenges requiring very big changes, and we want to support that evolution."

The Cycle Enfield proposals across the borough will cost about £42million over four years and Enfield Council says more cycling will cut congestion, improve air quality and have health benefits by cutting obesity.

The Winchmore Hill stretch is due to be finished by April and it is estimated that the whole of the A105 scheme will be completed by September.

An economic assessment by consultants Regeneris predicted a "ten to 15 per cent uplift" for local business "in the medium term" due to a more attractive shopping environment.

OPINION

Bill Linton
Enfield Green Party

EVERYONE knows we have a housing crisis in the UK, particularly in London, which has left many (particularly younger people) unable to afford to buy a home, in poor-quality or overcrowded accommodation and spending a large proportion of their income on private sector rents.

Think tank Green House has produced a report (<http://www.greenhousethinktank.org/uploads/4/8/3/2/48324387/housingfinal.pdf>) with the startling conclusion that simply increasing the rate of building is not the answer.

Instead it advocates measures such as ensuring the existing stock is better used, controlling rents and increasing the security of the private sector, discouraging the purchase of housing primarily as an investment, reducing inequality and providing affordable homes.

It argues that house building produces CO2, encourages growth (why that's not desirable is another argument) and the new homes will be snapped up largely by the rich and by buy-to-let landlords rather than by those needing housing.

One of the key requirements is a reduction in inequality, leading to a more equitable sharing of the housing stock, strengthening communities and reducing speculation in property.

Private rents must be controlled, with stronger rights for tenants, improved energy-efficiency standards and longer, more secure tenancies.

It is not possible to compress all the arguments of the report into a 250-word column. I recommend readers to read it for themselves.

Skilled EU nationals are vital part of our workforce

THE London Assembly has published a comprehensive report – EU Migration – detailing the risks facing London in terms of a post-Brexit immigration policy.

Twelve per cent of London's population is from EU countries, compared to four per cent in the whole of the UK.

About 13 per cent of the five million jobs in London – 600,000 jobs – are held by workers born in EU countries, with certain sectors particularly reliant on EU workers.

Roughly a third of employees in the accommodation and food services sector, for example, were born in EU countries, likewise a third of those working in London's tech sector are EU nationals. About a quarter of workers in the construction sector are EU-born and one tenth of NHS workers in London are from other EU countries.

Despite the obvious economic imperative of ensuring that EU nationals stay and continue to contribute to the bustling, dynamic city that is London (not to mention the social and cultural benefits), the British government has yet to guarantee that they will be allowed to do so.

This is a shameful way to treat people who moved to our shores in good faith. When we look at the figures, it is, furthermore, a risky game to play. London needs its EU nationals, just as it needs the skills and talents of all its residents, and the government needs to step up and do the right thing, for all concerned.

Jean Lambert
Green MEP for London

I won't be lectured by Tories about finances

UNFORTUNATELY, in his column (Advertiser, March 15), councillor Terry Neville manages to spectacularly misunderstand and misrepresent the financial position of the council.

Mr Neville criticises the Labour administration for its record on managing the borough's finances to invest in the long-term financial future while lauding the Tory government.

This is the same government who, let us not forget, has performed an abject and humiliating U-turn on National Insurance, which will cost the country at least £2billion in lost revenue.

It has also abandoned plans to abolish the deficit by 2020 because it isn't up to the job.

And let us not forget that Enfield Council has had its funding cut by tens of millions of pounds since 2010 (we've reduced expenditure by £131million since 2010 and need to make savings of £58.5m by 2020/21 because of reduction in government funding to us).

Unlike the government, we are managing our finances in a way that matches our use of resources to our needs as they occur.

Enfield is taking action to enable us to ensure the long-term financial sustainability of the council at a time when this Conservative government is removing our funding.

It is a responsible, business-orientated approach that will help to put the provision of services on a robust footing for the future when they are under sustained attack from the government Mr Neville supports.

If he had bothered to read and understand the papers he was given at our budget setting meeting on February 28 and listened to the answers to his questions, he would realise that Enfield has its priorities right during this period of unprecedented austerity and would not raise the same tired points over and over again.

I am not going to sit here and be lectured on finance by a party that U-turns on ill-conceived budget measures on National Insurance and leaves a £2bn gap in the finances.

So much for Tories being the party for fiscal prudence.

Councillor Dino Lemonides
Cabinet member for finance and efficiency

Young people are paying price for shortcomings of their elders

WE currently hear a lot about the trade deal to be negotiated between the government and the EU.

However, as a teacher, school governor and parent, I am deeply concerned about another kind of "deal" – the one young people are being offered, in Enfield and across the country.

We learn from your front page-story ("Heads we lose", Advertiser, March 15) that schools in Enfield are facing serious funding cuts, which are set to damage children's education.

As for Brexit, it will almost certainly reduce the life chances of our young people, compared with the previous generation.

Given that they represent the future of this country, shouldn't we be doing everything we can to support youngsters' development?

Instead, it seems as if they are being made to pay the price for the shortcomings of their elders. Do we really want to be the nation that failed its youth?

It's a privilege and an honour

IT is with deep regret that due to family reasons I will be resigning from my position as a councillor for Enfield Lock on Friday.

In the seven years I have served on the council I have taken great pride in seeing a Labour administration work tremendously hard for all residents across the borough.

I would like to thank council staff and partners for its ongoing efforts to improve Enfield as a whole and deliver services despite the reduced amount of money we receive from central government, a reduction which has unfairly targeted the poor and those in need.

I would also like to thank the people of Enfield Lock who put their faith in electing me twice to serve on the council. It's been a privilege and honour to serve you. I wish my successor well and hope that the people of Enfield Lock continue to place their trust in Labour to deliver quality services.

The Enfield story is a unique one which speaks to all of us regardless of who we are or from where we have come.

Councillor Ozzie Uzoanya
Enfield Lock ward

Jail sentences for people smugglers

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN and a woman found trying to smuggle Albanians in their car boot to Britain via the Channel Tunnel have been jailed.

Raymond Angelo Manuel and Thi Ngoc Bich Nguyen asked for a vehicle with a big boot when they hired an Audi for a trip to Calais.

But they were caught red-handed when they returned with two people hiding in the boot.

On March 26, 2015, police in Coquelles, France, stopped to question Manuel, 29, of Forest Road, Edmonton, and Nguyen, 28, of Great Cambridge Road, Enfield.

When questioned they said they had travelled as a belated Mother's Day treat for Nguyen.

However, when officers searched the car, they found two men concealed in the boot.

Manuel and Nguyen were arrested and subsequently charged with assisting unlawful immigration into the UK.

Inquiries with the car rental company revealed that Manuel had specifically asked for a car with a big boot.

After a trial Nguyen was found guilty of the attempted facilitation by a jury at Canterbury Crown Court on March 16. Manuel had pleaded guilty to the offence at an earlier hearing.

Jailed: Raymond Angelo Manuel and Thi Ngoc Bich Nguyen

The duo were sentenced on Friday when Manuel was jailed for two years and 114 days and Nguyen, 28, was jailed for two years.

The Albanians found in the boot were handed over to French police.

Assistant director David Fairclough, from the immigration enforcement team, said: "Despite their claims, this was not a Mother's Day treat, it was a criminal enterprise. Manuel and Nguyen went to Calais with one primary objective and that was to fill their hire car's boot not with shopping, but with people."

"The sentences handed out should serve as a warning to anyone tempted to get involved with this kind of criminality. We will catch you and put you before the courts. We will continue to work closely with Border Force colleagues to rigorously investigate allegations of immigration related criminality."

Artist Jane's book draws on the time caring for her mum

By Fiona O'Cleirigh

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

AN artist has turned her experience of caring for her mother into a book to support other people looking after elderly relatives.

Back in 2009, Jane Kerr Wood, who lives in The Ridgeway, Enfield, found herself struggling to cope with the sadness and isolation that can accompany looking after parents with dementia.

Luckily, she was able to put her expertise as a professional illustrator to good use and began making notes and drawings as a record of her struggle to handle her changing relationship with her mum (whom she has chosen not to name).

"It wasn't meant to be a book," said Jane. "It was just me trying to get my head around the situation."

The book, Dementia Diva – tales and tips from a survivor, takes the form of a series of cartoons and diary entries.

"Because I'm an artist, I saw things visually," said Jane. "Often I was shocked and upset, but then you begin to see the funny aspects."

She explained that dementia affects people differently. "My mother's sense of humour developed more as the dementia progressed," she said. "She didn't have so much of one before!"

Fortunately, apart from a brief episode of forgetfulness, her mother recognised her daughter until the end.

She also knew about the book. "She loved it," remembered Jane. "She really enjoyed it when I drew her."

Jane included a portrait of her mother in a watercolour exhibition, Bodies in Motion, which was staged at Forty Hall, in Forty Hill, Enfield, in 2010.

Sadly, Jane's mother passed away in 2015, shortly before her 95th birthday.

Jane strongly believes that caring support can make a big difference to how dementia is experienced.

"Sometimes older people have hearing problems that can affect things," she said. "Often I don't think they are touched enough, or receive hugs."

With support, some of her mother's memories were recovered with time, she said, although this may have been because the onset of the illness was late in her life.

The book is aimed primarily at other carers and offers sound advice and coping strategies as well as humour.

These include the importance of self-care for carers and the need to treat caring as proper

Memories: Jane Kerr Wood, left, has produced the book, above, as a tribute to her late mother work. This can make it both less painful and less stressful, especially as administration and paperwork builds up.

"My mother always was good at giving advice – including going into schools to talk to children – and I feel that this book is a tribute to her," added Jane.

"It's such a catharsis. Everyone sees it as negative and depressing, but my mother was such a happy soul. She was such a lovely person."

The book costs £7.99, with free postage, and is available from Jane's website at <https://www.dementiadia.co.uk/shop/>

BRIGHT SPARKS

Whether you're looking to save money on your lighting by switching to LED, searching for that perfect lamp - or are a tradesman working on a complete house makeover, family-run independent electrical wholesaler AW Electrical Supplies has it all.

With shopping locally and supporting local businesses more important than ever, we popped into their shop, conveniently situated just off the A10, to find out more and meet the bright sparks behind the company...

Anthony and Bill Oliveri

The moment you step into AW Electrical Supplies you can tell that brothers Anthony and William Oliveri (no prizes for how they came up with the name) have been in the electrical industry for a while.

Packed full of all that's new and cutting edge in the electrical industry and with that welcoming feeling so often missing within this trade, if you've got time for a coffee, definitely grab one (although I would personally recommend the hot chocolate).

Set up 9 years ago against the tide of a rise in the national wholesaler providing a faceless, unfriendly policy of only being able to provide those items already in their catalogue, AW, as well as stocking over £400k of products on site doesn't believe in saying no - if you want it and it's available somewhere...they'll find it.

With both brothers born and bred in Enfield (and William living just 10 minutes from the shop) it's clear that there was only going to be one place they'd choose to showcase what their 40 years of experience in the industry has shown them. "From lighting and heating through to electrical tools, we want every customer to walk away from our counter happy that they have everything they need. Whether it's the information they need to make informed judgements about the best materials for their projects, or a boot full of stock so that they can get on with the job that day" explains Anthony.

"So many companies will tell you they can get it for you in a couple of days - we want you to walk away with it that day, that's why we invest so much in stock, as well as our fleet of delivery vans," chipped in William. "That's not to say if we don't stock it here, we can't get it. We don't believe in anything being 'special', so if we haven't got it we'll source it for the customer, however big or small the order."

On hand from 7am each day, it's clear that the Oliveri brothers are passionate about customer service and with such a convenient location for us locals, it's literally a case of popping round the corner to see the extensive range of products in person. And for those who don't have the time to visit? Their new and improved website and speedy delivery service makes ordering online easier than ever.

"Being a small, independent business we're able to offer unrivalled knowledge and top quality electrical products - while keeping our prices as low as possible," says William. That's the AW promise in a nutshell, and there's no doubt that this local light is definitely the one-stop-shop for all our electrical needs.

What's on and what's coming

Inspiring show deserves a wider audience

Blowin' In The Wind
Chickenshed, March 16

CHICKENSHEED is renowned for moving and thought-provoking theatre and has surpassed itself with the current production.

Inspired by the Bob Dylan song, Blowin' In The Wind, artistic director Lou Stein wanted to celebrate the song and the man.

"This song is about every silent protest, every protest, every hope for every protest that has been and ever will be," said Stein.

He wanted to inspire people and get people thinking about who they are – "whether you should have gone on that protest march that you might have just thought about and how important it is not to assume that the world will just keep going in the right way."

And there is no better inspiration than the character he has placed at the heart of the production – Rosa Parks, played wonderfully by Jojo Morrall, the black seamstress who refused to give up her seat to a white man on an Alabama bus in 1955.

Her character guides us through history, showing us some of the most heart-wrenching and fantastical scenes of protests down the years – the mothers of the disappeared, the young soldiers, the Berlin wall, to name a few – all accompanied by haunting images, video clips and a choir singing music which seems to reach into the very soul.

What I loved about this production was the clever use of breaking the fourth wall

Rosa speaks her monologues directly to the audience to draw us in. We are no longer merely watching, we are a part of what is going on.

Stein said: "Rosa embodies everything that Blowin' In The Wind is about – strength, and that strength doesn't necessarily have to be loud, dignity and, most importantly, hope."

"No matter where we are in the world – like now is not a great time for the world – we will get through it, but we need our voices to be heard."

The skilful combination of imagery, words and music makes this a powerful production and one I sincerely hope Chickenshed will take out on the road to reach and inspire as many people as possible.

Anne-Marie Sanderson

GHOST IN THE SHELL (12A, 107 mins)

They are the guardians of a world reliant on the artificial technology produced by Hanka Robotics and join The Major in her high-octane battles with cyberterrorists including Kuze (Michael Pitt), who seeks to exploit loopholes for nefarious gain.

A new adversary runs amok and The Major and her cohorts pool their resources to unmask the shadowy figures behind the conspiracy.

Holding a successful open house viewing

Holding an open house event is a great way of creating a certain buzz about your property. Richard Oughton from Ellis & Co Enfield Town shares some preparation tips so you and your house are ready for a successful, full of impressed buyers.

As with most things, get the timing right for your open house viewing is essential. It's always a good idea to pick either a Saturday or Sunday, and to avoid weekends with popular events or bank holidays. This will ensure that a greater number of buyers are available to take a look and spend time perusing around your property.

Enlisting the help of an estate agent to hold the open house viewing for you will take the pressure off and help the event to run smoothly. Their experience in holding these events will ensure it is marketed effectively to attract a large number of buyers. When selling a home, it's advised to maintain a detached relationship with your buyers to make negotiating offers easier. By handing the hosting responsibility over to an estate agent, you can avoid meeting your buyers and allowing personal tastes and differences to affect your sale.

To prepare your home for an open house viewing, you should store away any excess furniture and remove any white goods that aren't included in the sale. This will help de-clutter your property, making it feel more spacious, and avoid your buyers becoming attached to something they can't have. You might also want to store some of your photographs to remove any personal connections.

On the day before the open house event, make sure you give your property a thorough clean, paying close attention to your kitchen and sitting rooms. Buyers will often take some time talking with the estate agent in the heart of your home, typically these rooms, and you want them to be as appealing as possible to create a positive lasting impression. If you have any pets, ask a close friend or relative to look after them for a couple of days.

This will mean that you have a good chance to have a really deep clean, and that they are away from the house when your potential buyers arrive; you don't want a cute pet distracting attention from your lovely home.

When tidying your property, remember to pay attention to your airing cupboard and any storage space you have under the stairs. Buyers will want to take a peek behind every door and you don't want to give them any cause for alarm with a locked door. Plus, a tidy cupboard will make your storage space feel large and valuable.

You should also pay close attention to the outside of your property to create a strong first impression and attract people passing by to take a look inside. Sweep the drive and pathway, clean the front door and windows and give the garden a spruce. It's also worth replacing your house numbers if they are looking tired as these are the first thing your buyers will look out for when locating your home. A new welcome mat is another great addition for creating a warm introduction, and having a place for your buyers to wipe their shoes will help to keep your carpet clean.

And finally, fresh flowers and large scented candles create a lovely finishing touch and give your home a welcoming, homely feel.

It's often a nervy experience handing your home over to an estate agent for a few hours of viewings, but the results are often outstanding and it could really help you to achieve the desired result out of your sale.

For more information or to organise an open day for your own property, please contact Ellis and Co Enfield Town Branch on 020 8363 8282 or email us on enfield@ellisandco.co.uk

The biggest Mini ever made

By Andrew Evans

DESPITE looking similar to its predecessor, the 2017 Mini Countryman is an all-new vehicle. It's based on the BMW "UKL" platform underpinning the BMW X1 and 2 Series Active Tourer, which Mini already uses on its newest-generation Clubman estate.

This does mean that the Countryman is dramatically larger than its predecessor, packing in an extra 20 centimetres of length – 7.5cm of it between the wheels – and three centimetres of width. It's a significant increase because it moves the Countryman up into the C-segment, which is the broadest and most competitive market sector in the UK.

There are very few badges with as long a history and as broad an appeal as Mini and if there's one brand that attracts people from all walks of life evenly, this is it.

A significant part of that appeal is the way the cars drive – which Mini somewhat chintzily refers to as "maximum go-kart feel" – and, despite the fact the Countryman is the largest Mini ever, it seems to translate pretty well to the big crossover. The chunky steering wheel offers a precise and well-controlled action and the size of the car means that some of the fidgety nature of the smaller hatches is removed.

On the Cooper S model we tested, the interior was a pretty high-quality environment, with backlit surfaces, leather upholstery and suede on the door panels. Mini is aiming for a luxury feel to what is ultimately its flagship vehicle.

The extra length in the wheelbase liberates a huge amount of interior room and, as such, the Countryman is now no less practical than any other C-segment vehicle, whether hatchback or crossover, making it an ideal family car.

Our test car was equipped with the 192bhp, 2.0-litre petrol engine. Fitted with the eight-speed Steptronic automatic and All4 four-wheel drive, this propels the Countryman to 60mph in seven seconds, although it doesn't feel anywhere near as quick as that even with the vehicle set to sport mode.

On paper, Mini cites a 44.1mpg fuel economy figure, but even in mixed use and with Green mode selected as often as possible, we didn't see much over 30mpg.

The car can also be specified with a lower output 1.5-litre, which with 136bhp sacrifices 2-2.5 seconds for the 60mph sprint depending on gearbox options, for about a 10% gain in fuel economy. A pair of 2.0-litre diesel engines is available, with 150bhp and 190bhp, the latter of which rivals the Cooper S for pace, but has up to 61.4mpg on paper. A hot Cooper JCW model is to follow, with a plug-in hybrid Cooper S E coming later in 2017.

The Countryman proves a good steer on country roads, whatever the drive mode selected. While undeniably a much larger car than before, it doesn't feel like a particularly big vehicle when you get it on enjoyable roads.

The steering is well weighted and reasonably communicative and, without the fidgeting of the smaller models, it's not as tiring to drive either. It's also pretty solid on the motorway, although there is a fair amount of road noise at higher speeds. With park distance control as standard on all Countryman models, it's an easy vehicle to manoeuvre, too.

The starting price for the Countryman is a reasonable £22,465.

However, the automatic gearbox and the All4 four-wheel-drive systems are options that will both set you back about £1,600 and soon start to make the Countryman look a little pricey – to say nothing of the other optional extras.

WANYAMA PRAISES MANAGER'S IMPACT

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR midfielder Victor Wanyama has hailed the positive impact that manager Mauricio Pochettino has had on his career.

The Kenyan international first worked under Pochettino for a year when he joined Southampton – where the Argentinian was then in charge – from Celtic in 2013, and the duo renewed their relationship when Wanyama signed for Spurs last summer.

Wanyama has quickly established himself as a key figure in the Tottenham side in his holding midfield role and is the only player to have started all 28 of their Premier League games this season, and he feels that a large part of his development is due to the influence of Pochettino.

“I’d never had a manager who wants you to improve day by day like he does,” Wanyama said. “He works on your weaknesses, he’s a good role model and he doesn’t just look at football, but life in general.

“He teaches you about life and how to live with people. That was amazing to me. We worked hard and, after a while, you could see the difference because in the games I felt like they were easier and we could run for 100 minutes because we were fitter. It worked well for us.

“I’d played against Spurs a few times before I joined and they were a hard team to beat. The manager started improving the team and I felt this was a club going somewhere.

“I looked at where the club was heading and with the manager I knew I couldn’t go wrong. I know he builds for the future and wants to fight for everything. I couldn’t resist that.”

Wanyama added: “Mauricio has improved my game in all aspects, everything. It’s not just football, in life as well I’ve learned a lot of things. He’s been able to teach me a lot inside and outside football and how to be humble.

“I’ve learned a lot of things through him and I don’t just see him as a manager, but as a father figure.”

Grateful player: Victor Wanyama feels that Tottenham boss Mauricio Pochettino has helped him to develop on and off the field

Although Eric Dier and Mousa Dembele have been Wanyama’s regular partners in the centre of midfield, this season has also seen Harry Winks begin to make his mark in the position after becoming the latest graduate of Spurs’ academy to progress into the first team.

Winks’ fine form has seen him force his way into the England under-21 side, and he hopes that will be able to break into the full England squad if he continues to develop at Tottenham.

He said: “The England under-21 manager [Aidy Boothroyd] has told us that there are opportunities there. As long as we keep performing for club and country and doing well, then the opportunity is there to take.

“With someone like Gareth Southgate in charge of England, he likes young players and he’s keen to bring us through and give us opportunities. It’s down to us really and whether we perform at club level to get the call-up.

“My next step is to take it game by game, whether that’s for the under-21s or for Tottenham. I’m quite young and all I can do is perform when I’m given the opportunities.”

Borough fall short against the leaders

THE task of taking on table-topping Brightlingsea Regent proved to be a step too far for Haringey Borough as their recent excellent run of form in the Ryman North Division came to an end with a 3-2 defeat in a thrilling game at Coles Park on Saturday.

Borough went into the match full of confidence on the back of seven successive wins in all competitions and having climbed into the play-off places, but they were always likely to face a stiff test against the runaway leaders.

And this proved to be the case as Brightlingsea took the lead after just four minutes when Josh Gould headed a corner into the net.

But Borough hit back well and levelled the scores on 28 minutes as the visitors lost possession deep inside their own half and Chris Benjamin took full advantage by drilling the ball home.

There were no further goals prior to the interval, but Brightlingsea restored their advantage three minutes into the second half – Gould turning in the rebound after a Jake Turner free-kick had been headed against the bar.

The visitors then took a firm grip on the match by adding a third in the 58th minute when Gould launched a long throw into the Borough box which Billy Hunt met with a spectacular overhead kick that flew into the net.

To their credit, the hosts refused to lie down and they reduced their deficit 12 minutes from time as a terrific cross was headed home by Adrian Markus.

Borough pressed forward in the rest of the match in desperate search of an equaliser, but they were unable to break through again as the visitors held on for the win.

However, with other results going in their favour, Borough remain fifth in the table despite the defeat.

Haringey Borough face another tough game at fourth-placed Thurrock on Saturday (3pm).

Skolars secure their first league win

THE London Skolars romped to their first win of the season in rugby league’s Kingstone Press League One on Saturday as they overwhelmed visiting Coventry Bears 42-16.

It was a dominant first-half display which set the hosts on the way to victory as they raced into a 30-0 lead and, although Coventry battled back well after the interval, the outcome was never really in any doubt after this.

The Skolars began the season with high hopes of success, but they came into the match having been beaten in their first two league matches – although one of those defeats was at the hands of red-hot title favourites Toronto Wolfpack.

However, they put that behind them in fine style by taking control from the start of this encounter, with a Billy Driver try giving them an early lead.

Another try from Lamont Bryan extended their advantage to 10-0 after 25 minutes and the Skolars then really cut loose in the closing stages of the first half as they grabbed four more tries in quick succession.

Josh Allinson scored two of the four tries, while Eddie Mbaraga and Ben Pointer also touched down prior to the interval.

Coventry finally opened their account at the start of the second half as Hayden Freeman crossed the line, but the hosts responded almost immediately as Charlie Lawrence cancelled this out with a try of his own.

Brad Delaney and Michael Russell added further tries for the visitors, but they were little more than consolation scores and Brandon Pickersgill rounded off an excellent day for the Skolars by touching down on his home debut. Lawrence converted five of the tries to complete the rout.

Without a match this weekend, the London Skolars return to action at the University of Gloucestershire on April 9.
